

Hi,

My name is Virgil Anderson. I was recently diagnosed with mesothelioma, which is a cancer caused by exposure to asbestos. Faith has been a big part of my journey and I'd like to share some of that information with your website visitors.

When I was diagnosed with mesothelioma I needed immediate medical attention. I found a few websites on the internet that are supposed to help people with my type of cancer but nobody got back to me.

Then I found Mesothelioma.net. Even though I contacted them on a Sunday one of their patient advocates gave me a call back within minutes. They gave me a great deal of information and resources available to me.

As a result of their website I am now being treated at the National Cancer Institute and the patient advocates have even provided me with financial assistance so I could afford a place to live during my cancer treatments. If I had not reached out to this website I would likely be homeless and more importantly in hospice waiting to die.

I've learned that there is nothing that comes upon you that that can destroy your life if you have faith. This power and strength is the force sufficient enough to demolish any stronghold that seeks to defeat you. I truly believe the people at Mesothelioma.net are my guardian angels, they gave me my only chance at survival and continue to stand by my side.

God Bless,
Virgil
